CINDY DOWNES

TIME MANAGEMENT, SCHEDULING AND RECORD KEEPING

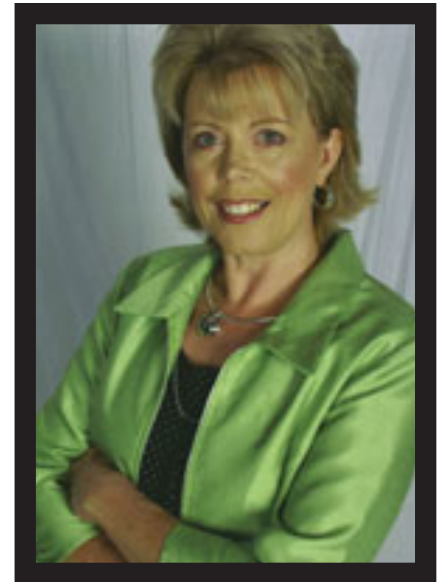

Many homeschool parents quit because they become overwhelmed with too many children on too many grade levels and too much to do in too little time. In this workshop, you'll learn how to (1) set priorities and keep them, (2) squeeze five hours of school into two, (3) write a log book entry, (4) document academics, extracurricular activities, and life learning into your log book, (5) create a portfolio, and (6) figure GPAs for transcripts.

TEACHING WITHOUT TEXTBOOKS

The best curriculum is not necessarily a textbook especially if your child has difficulty with traditional schoolwork, is advancing academically faster than "normal," or has specific career goals. This workshop will help you to think "out of the box" when choosing (or using your current) curriculum. You'll learn how to use alternative resources to create your own multi-level lesson plans that will take advantage of your child's specific interests, abilities, and learning styles. You may even save money in the process!

VOCATIONAL AND MINISTRY TRAINING FOR TEENS

God created each child for a specific purpose in his or her generation. Many parents make the mistake of overlooking their child's God-given gifts and strengths in order to focus on "what every 5th (6th, etc.) grader needs to know" or they assume that every child is called to be a doctor, lawyer, or teacher. The real question is: What is the Lord calling your child to do? This workshop will encourage parents to help their child find his specific calling, discover what he lacks to pursue that calling, and then equip him with what he needs to fulfill it. The information presented here is very helpful to parents whose teens are interested in alternatives to college.
